CROTHERSVILLE IS UNDER QUARANTINE

Drastic Action Taken to Prevent Smallpox From Becoming Epidemic in The Town.

SCHOOL AND CHURCHES CLOSED

Cases Develop in Five Families and Physicians Fear That Many Have Been Exposed.

The health board at Crothersville today put into effect a strict quarantine against smallpox to prevent a serious epidemic of the disease at that place. All public meetings are banned for a period of two weeks and what action will be taken as to quarantine measures after January 26 will be determined by conditions at that time. It is confidently believed, however, that the regulations may be safely lifted at that time.

Scattered cases of smallpox have been reported to the Crothersville health board for several days, but the drastic restrictive measures were not deemed necessary until it was discovered that one victim had been attending school. Cases are reported in five families in Crothersville. The homes under quarantine now are those of George Hay, Albert Rider, James Ritz, Harry Bridges and Henry Rider.

Violet Hay attended schools, it is said, after she had contracted the disease and at a time when it was most contagious to others. Inasmuch as the pupils and teachers were exposed, the health board deemed it best to ban all public gatherings for a two weeks' period so that the situation could be more easily controlled.

The quarantine order affects the school, churches, picture shows, pool rooms and lodges. The people in the town are co-operating with the health authorities in fighting the epidemic and it is believed that the restrictions may be safely lifted after January 26.

FOUR FREIGHT CARS DERAILED NEAR LEXINGTON

Baltimore & Ohio Branch Passenger Train Detoured Over Pennsylvania Lines.

Four Baltimore & Ohio railroad freight cars were derailed on the Louisville branch near Lexington this morning about 9 o'clock which held up traffic over the road for several hours. The Cincinnati wrecking crew was called to the scene and according to reports received at the local division offices the debris will be cleared away by late this afternoon.

The wreck was caused by a broken truck on one of the freight cars. All of the employees escaped injury. A Louisville and Cincinnati passenger train was detoured over the Pennsylvania lines from Louisville to this city on to the main line. The train was running about two hours late.

10-CENT ADVANCE IN WHEAT PRICE

Local Mills and Elevators Paying $2.55 for No. 1 and $2.52 For the Second Grade.

UNCERTAINTY OF FUTURE

Local Farmers Holding Grain in Storage Interested in Statement of Director Barnes.

On the heels of an announcement by Julius H. Barnes, United States wheat director, that there will probably come a sharp change in the price of wheat, without stating whether the price will advance or decline, local mills and elevators today bid $2.55 for No. 1 and $2.52 for No. 2 wheat, an increase of ten cents a bushel above the price paid Saturday. The first big jump in the local price came last week when the Grain Corporation announced that all wheat which it held in this district had been distributed. The statement meant that the only wheat available for milling purposes was held by elevators, mills and farmers.

Practically all farmers, however, disposed of their wheat at the harvest season or shortly afterwards, and only a small percentage, it is said, will benefit by the sudden jump in price at this time. Mr. Barnes' statement is rather obscure inasmuch as he did not state whether the price will increase or decline.

The price of wheat has a direct influence upon the retail price of flour and in this every householder is interested. Many people are expecting the price of flour to soar to unprecedented heights and are buying sufficient quantities to meet their needs until the new wheat crop is received.

Mr. Barnes' statement which has a local interest follows:

"Our total wheat crop exceeded that of 1918. Much is said of the relative scarcity of strong wheats. The curious fact develops, however, that by continued replacements from the Southwest and the Pacific coast, and because Eastern mills will probably draw their smaller needs of strong wheats from Canada and the Argentine, the Northwestern mills can grind fully equal to last year's

NUMBER OF STOLEN FLASH LIGHTS SOLD IN THIS CITY

Articles Taken from Fettig's Store Friday Night Returned—Thief Has Disappeared.

Practically all the flashlights which were stolen from Fettig & Co. Friday night have been returned to the company. The rubber heels which were also taken are still missing. The thief is said to have disappeared from the city and it is likely that he took the rubber heels with them, intending to step firmly and noiselessly.

Some of the flashlights were sold to parties to whom a man represented himself as a salesman. He said he had the lamps as samples and had been ordered by the house to dispose of them and for that reason he could offer them at a reduced price. When the theft at Fettig's store became known the lamps were returned.

NEWBERRY TO FACE TRIAL

Judge Sessions Denies Demurrer to Indictment.

By United Press
Grand Rapids, Mich., January 12—Hope of Senator Truman Newberry and 134 others indicted with him that the case against them would be dismissed faded today when United States District Judge Clarence Sessions denied a demurrer argued by the defense. Newberry's attorneys argued that the indictments were unconstitutional.

The Newberry case will begin January 27 as previously arranged.

IMPROVEMENTS TO BE STARTED SOON

Water Works and Street Paving Contracts at Crothersville To Begin in The Spring.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED

Part of the Capital Stock for the Water Company is Taken up by Investors in The Town.

Crothersville people expect that 1920 will be the busiest year in the history of the town. If the present plans are carried out the amount to be spent for permanent improvements will be the largest ever expended in any single year. The preliminary arrangements for the work have been completed and it is expected that they will be well under way by the early part of the summer.

The biggest improvement contemplated for the town is the construction of a water works system. This will cost in the neighborhood of $70,000 and will be constructed with the view of taking care of the future needs of the town. The franchise has been awarded by the town board to the company and it is understood that all the capital stock has been subscribed. A South Bend capitalist is a heavy stockholder in the company and a number of the people in Crothersville have subscribed stock to insure the completion of the system. The water will be obtained from deep wells to be driven less than a mile from the town. One reason why the property owners there are desirous of a water works system is that the town has no fire protection now and they believe that

WOMEN WATCHING SUFFRAGE ACTION

Legislature Will Likely Be Called in Special Session This Week to Ratify Amendment.

WILL GET VOTE THIS FALL

Senator Elsner and Frank Butler, Representative, Will Favor Ratification Resolution.

Many local women who have an ambition to walk up to the ballot box and have a deciding voice in the selection of public officials, are closely watching the developments in the proposed special session of the state legislature this week. It is expected that the call for the special session will be issued tomorrow by Governor Goodrich and the senators and representatives will then have two days' notice before the session convenes. The call is issued because two thirds of the members of the senate and house agreed to consider no other matters of legislation at this time.

Senator Elsner, Democratic floor leader in the senate, has expressed himself as opposed to the limitation of the special session to the consideration of one matter. Frank B. Butler, of Crothersville, representative from Jackson county, was opposed to the limiting the business to come before the legislature until he was advised that another session will more than likely be called in April. At that time other legislative matters may be discussed. Mr. Butler informed the Governor that he would pledge himself to present no other matters at the one day session.

Lieutenant Governor Bush has made it known that he regards the "limitation session" as unconstitutional. His public announcement indicates that so far as the president of the senate is concerned he will give a hearing to other business than the ratification of the woman's suffrage amendment. However, if two-thirds of the members of the senate enter the "gentlemen's agreement" not to present other matters of business they will be able to block any attempts to introduce other bills. The special session will not be called until such two-thirds majority pledge

SAMUEL ALLMAN TRIAL ON IN CIRCUIT COURT

George Putorff, of Medora, Fined for Failing to Keep Child in School.

The case of the state against Samuel Allman, charged with failure to keep his children in school, was on trial in the Jackson circuit court today. About twenty witnesses were called to testify in the case. Samuel B. Moore, county truant officer, was the prosecuting witness. A similar case against Calvin Baker will be tried following the completion of the Allman case which will likely be called late today.

George Putorff, of Medora was arrested Saturday on a charge of failing to keep his child in school and when arraigned in circuit court today pleaded guilty. He was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to the county jail for thirty days. The sentence was suspended upon the promise of Putorff to keep his child in school regularly hereafter.

CLEMENCEAU TO BE FRENCH PRESIDENT

Premier's Election Practically Certain on Face of Returns in Voting Yesterday.

POINCARÉ GOES TO SENATE

General Defeat of Socialists and Re-election of Majority of Cabinet Appears Certain.

By United Press
Paris, January 12.—Premier

Clemenceau's election to the presidency practically has been assured as a result of yesterday's elections to the French senate, it was indicated today.

A majority of the Premier's supporters were successful, election returns showed.

The chamber of deputies and the senate will meet January 17th to name the new president.

Returns up to early today indicated a general defeat for the Socialists. In the Seine province, it was said, the Socialist defeat was overwhelming.

A majority of the cabinet has been re-elected and President Poincaré, while not a candidate, has been elected to the senate by a plurality of 547. Voters in the Meuse district wrote his name on the ballot.

Stephen Pichon, foreign minister; M. Clementel, minister of commerce; M. Pams, home minister, and Senator Dubost have been re-elected, according to early returns, while Senator Humbert probably has been defeated.

SAYS PEACE TREATY MAKE AUSTRIA PERPETUA BEGGAR

Herbert Hoover Favors Loan of $150,000,000—Robbed of Agricultural Lands.

By United Press

Washington, January 12.—The peace treaty makes Austria a perpetual poor house and this condition must be changed in a few years, Herbert Hoover told the house ways and means committee today. Hoover urged the extension of loans of $150,000,000 to Austria and Armenia to prevent starvation. He declared in giving credit to Austria the United States should declare to Europe that the European powers are responsible for the situation in Austria. The treaty, he said, shears Austria of all the agricultural lands from which it previously obtained its existence.

He planned to back the request of Secretary Glass for authorization of credits up to $150,000,000 to supply the needed food. This money which would go to food dealers in this country, would be taken out of the $1,000,000,000 wheat guarantee fund of the United States grain corporation, which through its control of grain would prevent any rise in prices here. In turn the starving nations will give their notes for the food. The only limitation on the loans will be that the food must be sold to government agencies abroad, in order that European profiteers may not benefit.

RENEWED EFFORTS FOR COMPROMISE

Twenty Democratic Senators Meet at Residence of Senator Owen to Discuss Situation.

DECIDE ON RESERVATIONS

White House Statement Says Conference Does Not Indicate Break in Wilson's Leadership.

By United Press

Washington, January 12.—Renewed efforts to bring about a treaty compromise with interpretative reservations that President Wilson will accept, were foreseen today when it became known that twenty Democratic senators met at midnight at the residence of Senator Owen, Oklahoma, and decided to do everything possible to bring about immediate ratification.

The meeting was called a few hours after Senator Lodge, Republican leader, made a move to ascertain how many Democrats would follow the advice of William Jennings Bryan and accept any kind of a compromise. Senator Owen then invited the Democrats to his residence to "talk it over." The result was that those present, including the administration spokesman on the floor of the senate, agreed to make every effort to obtain a compromise on the basis of "interpretative reservations" which Wilson will accept.

"The treaty situation looks better than it has for months," it was stated today at the White House. There is no disposition to be concerned over the meeting last night at Senator Owen's residence. The meeting was not a breaking away from the President's leadership.

Senator Lodge's demand for a Democratic "showdown" on treaty compromise, was answered today when word was sent him through Republican "mild reservationists" that "a substantial number of Democrats, more than twenty in all," will support reasonable reservations that do "not scuttle" the treaty.

Lodge on Saturday demanded that before any further consideration be given Democratic compromise proposals that some definite assurances be given him concerning the number of Democratic votes behind the proposal. Accordingly, Senator Owen called the conference of Democrats at his residence Sunday night. The result of this conference as sent out today by senators who attended were:

1. All the Democrats at the conference went on record in favor of treaty ratification with reasonable reservations of the kind President Wilson prescribed as "interpretative."
2. Democrats are not yet agreed on a definite program.
3. It was the unanimous view that the President does not want the treaty taken into the campaign and that if the senate will send him reservations showing the United States is friendly and not antagonistic to the treaty he will accept them.
4. There was no suggestion of revolt against the President's leadership and no disposition to follow Bryan.

THE TELEPHONE

The census department will soon issue a report dealing with the telephone industry in the United States. An advance summary of the report has been prepared and contains statistics which show the remarkable growth in the use of the telephone.

During the decade from 1907 to 1917 the wire mileage increased 129 per cent. and the number of telephones jumped 102.8 per cent. There was an increase of 90.5 per cent. in the number of messages for systems having incomes in excess of $5,000.

There are 53,234 separate telephone systems in the United States. These have 28,827,188 miles of wire, enough to girdle the earth at the equator 1,153 times. These systems connect 11,716,520 telephones and 21,175 public exchanges. Figured on the estimator population of the country in 1917, the twenty-two billion calls over these systems represent an average of 211 annual messages for every man, woman and child in the United States.

The operation of these systems constitutes an industry of considerable magnitude. In 1917, when the latest figures were available, 262,629 persons were employed in the telephone industry. Of this number 171,119, or more than sixty-five per cent, were women. Wages and salaries amounted to $175,670,449. The value of the plants and equipment totaled $1,492,329,015 yielding operating and non-operating revenues of $391,499,531.

The Bell Company dominates the telephone business in this country, according to the figures in the report. This corporation controlled over four-fifths of the total wire mileage, employs over three-fourths of the employees, paid over four-fifths of the salary and wage total and received nearly four-fifths of the total revenue. Of the companies reported, 96.1 per cent., exclusive of the Bell properties, had annual incomes of less than $5,000.

These statistics show to what extent the telephone has become a factor in social and business life in the United States. If the information were possible, it would be highly interesting to know what percentage of business is done over the telephone. Telephonic communication is not only a convenience, but it is a time saving method as the facts are presented briefly. Transaction of business over the telephone is a study. A disconnected business conversation fails to produce the results of one that presents the data in a logical, concise and impressive form.

Representative James T. Begg, of Ohio, one of the new Republican members of the House, has introduced a bill to get after those who aim to subvert the government of the United States. He would provide "that it shall be unlawful for any person or organization to advocate, advise, incite, teach or justify the overthrow, change, or destruction of the government of the United States by force or violence, or resist or rebel against the authority of the government or constitution of the United States, or to prevent, hinder, oppose or delay the execution of any law of the United States." He would punish those who write or speak in advocacy of our government's overthrow, those who use the mails for such propaganda, and those who make or display a red flag as a symbol of it. Ten years in the penitentiary is his penalty for the offense.

The bill introduced by Representative Carl W. Riddick, of Montana, to provide $4,000,000 for loans to farmers in drought-stricken sections of the United States for the purchase of seed for the 1920 spring planting is meeting with general approval among the farmers. It is stated in the bill that no loan shall be made to any farmer in a greater sum than $300, and that all loans shall be made through national or state banks, and be secured by a first lien on the crop planted with the seed so secured. Any one making a false oath as to the facts is fined $1,000 or imprisoned six months or both.

Annual Inventories Necessary To Compile Income Tax Return

To the person whose income is derived from business, the problem of making out a correct income-tax return is greater than that presented to the salaried man.

Business enterprises may be divided into three classes—those engaged in making, those engaged in producing, and those engaged in trading. To these may be added another class—those which do not produce, make, or trade, and which may be designated as business services, such as transportation, storage, laundry, livery, and garage service. In such cases the gross income would be the total amount earned and received.

To reflect net income correctly and to ascertain gross income, inventories are necessary at the beginning and end of each fiscal or calendar year according to the method of accounting, in every business in which production, purchase, or sale of merchandise is an income-producing factor.

The inventory should include raw material and supplies on hand that have been acquired for sale or use in production, together with all finished or partly finished goods. It should include merchandise sold but not billed to the customer at the date of the inventory and any goods out upon consignment, unless such goods have been included in the sales for the taxable year. It should also include merchandise purchased, although not actually received, to which title has passed to the purchaser.

Inventories may be taken either on the basis of "cost" or "cost or market," whichever is lower. Either method once adopted must be followed each year, unless permission to change is obtained from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

In computing net income a merchant may find his profits on the following basis:

First ascertain the gross sales and the other items of gross income, such as interest on bank deposits and miscellaneous items. Then add together the inventory at the beginning of the year and the cost of goods purchased for resale. From this sum subtract the inventory at the end of the year, and the result is the cost of goods sold. This cost, plus necessary business expenses, is to be deducted from the gross sales and other income and the result is the net income of the business. Typical deductible business expenses are for salaries, labor, cost of merchandise, raw materials and supplies, rent, repairs, light, power, delivery, selling cost, advertising, and insurance.

No special system of accounts is prescribed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue but the books should show in detail inventories, purchase, sales, capital investments, depreciation, and similar items required in making up the income-tax return.

"Aside from the necessity of keeping systematic accounts in order to comply with the Government's requirements, every progressive merchant should adopt an approved accounting system for the good of his own business," says Commissioner of Internal Revenue Daniel C. Roper. "In no other way can he further his financial interests more effectively. It has been proven time and time again that accurate accounts are absolutely essential to success in business. The merchant who has a good accounting system is able to eliminate waste and unnecessary expense, and can so control his credits as to greatly lessen his chances of failure. The inventory, which can not be taken without some form of accounts, is the compass of a business. Without it the direction in which the business is heading either for success or failure can not be determined."

TREE INFECTION

State Entomologists Calls Attention to Crown Gall.

By United Press

Indianapolis, Jan. 12—The department of conservation today sent out warnings to nurserymen throughout the state to beware of a fruit tree infection known as crown gall and hairy root.

The shortage of fruit trees in Indiana made it necessary that out of state shipments be received and many of these trees are infected, according to Frank N. Wallace, head of the division of entomology. Wallace said the nurserymen who are responsible for this will be prosecuted and that license cancellation will be one method of bringing them to terms.

Trees that formerly sold wholesale at from five to ten cents are now selling at fifty cents. This is due to the fact that the demand is greater than the supply and unless some means is found to increase the supply this price will soon be increased, according to Wallace.

Howard Bartlett, who spent Christmas with his parents Mr. and Mrs. George Bartlett, left Wednesday for Greenwood, Miss., where he has accepted a position with the wholesale and retail lumber company. Mrs. Bartlett is visiting her parents, in Rochester Ind., at present, and left today for Mississippi.

THE MAN NOBODY KNEW

He Was the Man Nobody Knew Did They Ever Know Him?

A Strange, Though Logical Story

A genius for odd, unusual, deeply absorbing plots, Holworthy Hall has here given his best talent. Not a war, but an after the war story. True, the war furnished the first incident and it also furnished the hero with the strangest opportunity, the most complex problem and involved code of ethics a man ever had.

Did Woman Ever Have Experience More Amazing Than That of Being Wooed Twice by the Same Man Under Different Characters?

It is but one of the many astounding elements of this tale, which starts off with a punch and holds the undivided interest of the reader until the end. Do not miss it! It is

"THE GIRL WHO CAME BACK"

Adapted from "Leak Kieschna" By C. M. S. McClellan

A Paramount Picture

Reared from Girlhood with a Torch in one hand and a Revolver in the other.

If a man breaks into a house at dead of night he expects, if discovered, to meet with a pretty hot reception. But if the cracksmen sends his pretty daughter instead and the son of the house comes down in his dressing gown and finds the intruder's slender fingers toying with the family pearls, what's the upshot then, particularly if the girl is as attractive as Ethel Clayton?

HOME MADE RECIPE CATARRH AND COLDS

Nonexpensive—Cut This Out.

Thousands are making this beneficial remedy at home and anyone who has catarrh or a cold can do the same.

Ask your druggist for three quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arcline and pour it into a pint bottle, then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled.

Gargle the throat as directed and snuff or spray the liquid into the nostrils twice daily. It's a simple way to get rid of cold and catarrh and keeps the nasal passage and throat so clean and healthy that germs of flu or any other germs will have a hard time gaining a foothold.

WAS NERVOUS AND RUN DOWN

RESTORED TO NORMAL HEALTH BY BIO-FEREN

"I feel I owe you people a word of gratitude for the benefit I have received in using your wonderful remedy—Bio-feren Tablets, which have completely restored me to normal conditions," says Joseph E. Webb of Muncie, Indiana.

Bio-feren is without doubt the grandest and quickest remedy for nervous, run down, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through the druggists and is not at all expensive.

Take two after each meal and one at bed time, and after seven days take one after each meal and one at bed time until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if you are not in better health—if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen minded, yes, twice as much as you did before, the druggist who sold you the tablets will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand, or can easily get it for you. Seven a day for seven days—Wonderful results.

MANDEL IS REAL RULER OF FRANCE

Head of Clemenceau's Personal Cabinet an Autocrat—Keeps Big Men Waiting.

It seems to be the fashion in France, nowadays, to dispute the origin of masterpieces, and lately the columns of the leading papers have been animated with letters from wise men on the subject of the authenticity of Mollere's plays. Some claim that certain of the works of France's greatest playwright are in reality from the hand of Corneille. The next question in order would seem to be, "Who wrote Corneille's plays?" Without going into the intricacies of a literary discussion, which in the present crisis might be deemed beside the mark, it is perhaps permissible to inquire if the political accomplishments of M. Clemenceau are really to be credited to his genius or if they are inspired by another brain than his, for instance, that of St. Mandel, writes Julian Harris in the New York Herald.

A few months ago one of the most influential of the deputies went to recommend one of his electors to the head of Mr. Clemenceau's cabinet. Mr. Mandel, who since his election as deputy has been succeeded by Mr. Wormser, received him in his office, now a historic spot, seated before a small desk, no less historic, the sole ornament of which is a standard telephone. Almost before the deputy could make known the object of his visit, Mr. Mandel took charge of the conversation, and out of the depths of his collar, in his well-known manner, began to unfold the ideas of the government on the question of the order of the day at the Palais Bourbon.

Keeps Former President Waiting.

In the midst of his remarks a messenger came in and handed the eminent chief of Clemenceau's personal cabinet the card of a visitor. Annoyed at the interruption, Mr. Mandel with a weary gesture inquired, "What does this person want?"

Before the messenger could hazard a reply the card was returned to him with the following instructions:—"I have no time for him. Take this card to M. Clemenceau, president of the council."

The messenger bowed and withdrew and Mr. Mandel continued his monologue. But in a few moments the messenger returned with the news that the caller insisted upon seeing the chief of the personal cabinet himself. The latter shrugged his shoulders as he replied: "Let him wait."

Upon which he again took up the thread of his discourse. The deputy listened, approved, and finally recommended his elector, as he withdrew from the chief's presence. On his way out he noticed in the small waiting room, seated near the door of Mr. Mandel's office, M. Emile Loubet, former president of the French republic, patiently waiting the pleasure of the chief of cabinet.

In the meantime another deputy, equally influential, was ushered into Mr. Mandel's office. The latter harangued him as he had done his fellow member, and the messenger again interrupted, this time with a letter. "With your permission," said the chief of cabinet, as he broke the seal and read the missive. Then turning to the messenger, "Tell him that I have not a moment to spare, and hand him this from me." And he gave the man a small box which he took out of one of the drawers of the historic desk.

Never Sleeps, Eats or Drinks.

A few moments later the deputy noticed in the waiting room a little old man who was offering some cigars from the box which had been sent him to the employees of the office. As he did so he kept repeating to the messenger, "Tell monsieur that he is very kind, very kind indeed."

"Who is that man?" asked the deputy when the little old man had gone his way. The imperturbable messenger replied, "That is Mr. Rothschild, Mr. Mandel's father."

A third deputy, as influential as the other two, one day was present at the following dialogue in the office of the chief of cabinet:

Messenger—The president of the council and General Mordacq are about to go out. They would like to know if Monsieur has anything to say to them.

Mr. Mandel (after an instant's reflection)—No, I gave them my instructions this morning.

The astonished deputy glanced at Mr. Mandel, but the latter looked quite as usual, serious and unsmiling.

A fourth deputy offers the following psychological sketch of Mr. Mandel:

"He is a man who never sleeps, who never eats, who never drinks, who writes nothing who has no interest in women and who takes a telephone to bed with him."

An Attentive Pupil.

Jack, aged five, and Henry, seven, had listened attentively while the rector explained to the church school the reason for the campaign for church expansion. On the way home Jack noticed for the first time the posters advertising the campaign.

"Who put up those posters?" piped Jack.

"God," said Henry, without a moment's hesitation.

"How do you know God did it?" Jack asked.

"Oh, didn't you hear Mr. Browne say all this church expansion is God's work?"

The Curved Line.

The curved line has more than one meaning in music. When placed over two or more notes of different pitch, it means that the notes are to be played smoothly, the first note generally has an accent and the last note played lightly. When placed over a series of notes of the same pitch with a dot over each note, it means that the notes should be detached, or played in a half staccato manner. A short curved line with a dot beneath indicates that the note or rest beneath should be prolonged indefinitely.

Now Prefers Home.

"How is it that Arthur never takes you to the theater nowadays?" queried Marie.

"Well, you see," her friend replied, "one evening it rained and we sat in the parlor."

"Yes?"

"Well, ever since that we—oh, I don't know; but don't you think that theaters are an awful bore?"—London Tit-Bits.

such a plant will afford this protection.

Contracts for more than a mile of improved streets have also been awarded and the work is expected to begin early in the spring. The streets which carry the heaviest traffic are to be paved and the people there declare that this improvement will add materially to the appearance of the town and will also be of great value to Crothersville business men and manufacturers. At some seasons the streets leading to some of the factories are so badly cut up that it is almost impossible for teams to pull heavily loaded wagons over them.

A new sewerage system was recently constructed in the central part of the town and it is understood that several extensions are contemplated.
The sewers were laid before the streets were improved so that it would not be necessary to tear up the paved streets to construct the system.

The improvement program at Crothersville has met with opposition and the last town election was fought out on that line. The candidates in favor of the program were successful and the completion of the work is assured. The opposition to the street paving took the form of an injunction suit, but those in favor of awarding the contracts were successful in that litigation. Residents there are of the opinion that all the obstructions in the way of finishing the improvements have been removed and predict that the work will be rushed to completion as soon as the weather is favorable for outside work.

WOMAN DIVER "MAKES GOOD"

Her Record in Tobermory Bay Compares Favorably With That of Male Companions.

Since 1914 it has become quite the usual thing to find woman invading what had always been regarded as man's own special domain in every direction, and now comes the news of a woman diver being employed in the salvage operations in Tobermory bay, which lies off the west coast of Scotland, near the Isle of Mull. Although the weather conditions were far from ideal on the first day she attempted her trip below seas, the venture turned out a complete success. In 1588 one of the treasure ships of the Spanish armada was sunk in Tobermory bay, and it is in connection with the recovery of this treasure that the services of a woman diver have been put into operation. During the last two months various articles have been recovered from the wreck, among them pieces of black African oak, sheets of lead, copper, and pewter, broken pieces of pottery, old Spanish coins, and some large roundish stones. With regard to the latter, in the general orders issued to the Armada by the duke of Medina Sidonia, appears the following instruction: "Every ship will carry on board casting stones to be used during a fight." The sheet lead was used on the largest galleons to protect their decks and sides. Among the coins are some pieces of eight, which are supposed to have fallen from the pockets of the Spanish sailors. These show the usual castles and also the claim of Philip II to be king of the Indies.

WHEAT PRICE

large production and still leave at the end of this crop year a larger carryover in the Northwest than last year.

"Exports for the past six months are 33,000,000 bushels less than last year. Difficult finances abroad, forcing utmost curtailment of purchases will continue. Present purchases, still to be shipped, will largely supply foreign requirements for a considerable period. Cheaper rye will replace some wheat. The United States can apparently export 50,000,000 bushels of rye, against 35,000,000 bushels last year.

"Farmers, millers and dealers (outside of the grain corporation), own and are carrying 437,000,000 bushels of wheat against 299,000,000 a year ago. Seriously ponder on this statement. After June 1, next, the grain corporation authority to buy wheat at the guaranteed price expires and thereafter the security of that basis is withdrawn. The fact that present prices largely rule over the government guarantee should not obstruct a study of conditions which may develop and at a time when that price assurance no longer exists. America's complex and delicate marketing structure must be preserved, and prepared to function when this agency retires.

"Price fluctuation always is followed by distress and loss. Wisdom dictates the reduction of obligations to the minimum required for the conduct of necessary current business. We should not feel that the full responsibility of this office has been discharged without calling attention to the price hazard which may exist for many months, knowing that a large part of the producing and distributing trades have been accustomed by two years of official stabilization and assurance perhaps not to fully realize the danger of over extended obligations under the present extraordinary world situation."

JUDGE LINN HAY GRANTS DIVORCE AS LAST RESORT

Says Evil is Due to Inability of Married People to "Give and Take."

By United Press

Indianapolis, Jan. 12—In a scathing denouncement from the bench on the divorce evil, Judge Linn Hay of superior court declared the inability of married men and women to learn the simple lesson of "give and take" was the cause of a great majority of married folk rushing into the divorce courts.

"The marriage vow is a sacred oath and any act which tends to violate that vow is striking at the very foundation of our social structure," said the court. "It is the solemn duty of a judge to aid in reuniting misguided couples and grant a divorce only when all chances for reconciliation are abandoned."

Judge Hay flatly refuses to grant divorces until sufficient time has been given to reconcile the couples if possible.

NAVAL HERO AND HIS WIFE

Lieut. E. V. M. Isaacs, photographed with his wife at the Washington navy yard, where he is now inspector of munitions. Secretary of the Navy Daniels has awarded to him the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award. Lieutenant Isaacs, according to the official citation, was captured by the German submarine U-90 when the U. S. S. President Lincoln was sunk and while a prisoner obtained extremely valuable information concerning German submarines. After an unsuccessful attempt, he escaped from a German prison and gave the information to the allies.

On Her Own Resources.

Louise, age four, was listening earnestly to a conversation between her mother and a relative. The relative, after telling at some length one of her experiences, ended with the remark:

"And so I was thrown upon my own resources."

Louise pondered for a moment in the silence that followed the story, and then said: "Well, auntie, you could take lots of rides, couldn't you?"

The aunt was puzzled and asked for an explanation.

"Well," said Louise, "you know you said you were thrown on your own race horses."

Peddlers Join in Singing.

The Breton onion seller, writes a correspondent, was, up till the war, a familiar figure in the Highlands of Scotland.

One day, in Caithness, I was playing some of Theodore Botrel's songs on the piano, when to my surprise a pair of lusty voices joined in.

Two onion sellers, hearing me from the road, had come up to the window to enjoy the melodies of their homeland.

We kept up a concert for over half an hour, to the extreme delight of all the small boys in the vicinity.

Bad Sickness Caused by Acid-Stomach

If people only realized the health-destroying power of an acid stomach—of the many kinds of sickness and misery it causes—of the lives it literally wrecks—they would guard against it as carefully as they do against a deadly plague. You know in an instant the first symptoms of acid stomach—pains of indigestion, distressing painful bloating, sour, gassy stomach, belching, food repeating, heartburn, etc. Whenever your stomach feels this way you should lose no time in putting it to rights. If you don't, serious consequences are almost sure to follow, such as intestinal fermentation, auto-intoxication, impairment of the entire nervous system, headache, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, sometimes even catarrh of the stomach and intestinal ulcers and cancer.

If you are not feeling right, see if it isn't acid stomach that is the cause of your ill health. Take EATONIC, the wonderful modern stomach remedy. EATONIC Tablets quickly and surely relieve the pain, bloating, belching and heartburn that indicate acid stomach. Make the stomach strong, clean and sweet. By keeping the stomach in healthy condition so that you can get full strength from your food, your general health steadily improves. Results are marvellously quick. Just try EATONIC and you will be as enthusiastic as the thousands who have used it and who say they never dreamed anything could bring such marvelous relief.

So get a big 50-cent box of EATONIC from your druggist today. If not satisfactory return it and he will refund your money.

WAS FOILED BY A VULTURE

Lieut. Etienne Poullet, French flier, might have beaten Capt. Roos Smith in the race to Australia had he not been for a fight with a huge vulture while flying over the mountain peaks of Siam near the town of Moumah. The vulture circled for a time over the aircraft, which was making little speed because of weather conditions, then dived straight down, striking and shattering the right propeller. The lieutenant searched the mountain tops for over half an hour before finding a suitable place for landing. He had to abandon the race.

EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH A Universal Radiator Shutter

To drive an automobile without some method of keeping cold drafts away from the engine and radiator is just as wasteful of fuel as trying to warm a house in zero weather with all the windows and doors open.

The gasoline burned in the cylinders of the engine is the only source of heat. "THE UNIVERSAL RADIATOR SHUTTER" affords the only means of conserving this heat.

The longer the engine is kept hot and the fewer number of times it is started from or in a cold condition, the greater reduction you can effect in gasoline bills. That's just what you can do with a "UNIVERSAL RADIATOR SHUTTER." And it is easily controlled from the seat. No special tools or experience required to install shutter.

CHAPTER XVI.

We Accept a Refugee.

I looked again at the thing with a fresh curiosity, yet with no direct thought of any connection. The undisguised terror manifest in her face, however, caused me to realize the sudden suspicion which this discovery had aroused.

"That means nothing," I insisted, taking the pin back into my own possession. "It is probably the emblem of some secret order, and there may be thousands of them scattered about. Anyhow this one never belonged to Joe Kirby. He could never have been here. My guess is the fellow is back at Yellow Banks before now. Forget it, Eloise, while we eat. Then a few hours sleep will restore your nerves; you are all worn out."

We had nearly completed the meal, seated around what remained of the shattered table. The boy Asa sat at the very end of the table, facing the open door, eating as though he had not tasted food for a week. From the time of sitting down he had scarcely raised his eyes from off the pewter plate before him; but at last this was emptied, and he lifted his head, to stare out through the open door. Into his face came a look of dumb, inarticulate fright, as his lips gave utterance to one cry of warning.

"Look! Look!"

With swift turn of the head I saw what he meant—a man on horseback, riding at a savage gallop up the trail, directly for the cabin, bent so low in the saddle his features could not be discerned, but, from his clothing, unquestionably white. I was without the door, Tim beside me rifle in hand, when the fellow swept around the base of the oak, still staring behind him, as though in fright of pursuers, and flogging his straining horse with the end of a rein. He appeared fairly crazed with fear, unaware in his blind terror of the close proximity of the cabin.

"Hold on!" I yelled, springing forward, my arms thrown up, directly in the animal's course. "Stop, you fool!" I know not whether the frantic horse checked itself, or if the rider drew rein, but the beast stopped, half rearing, and I gazed with amazement into the revealed face of the man—he was Joe Kirby. Before I could speak, or move, he burst into words.

"You! Knox! My God, man, who ever you are, don't refuse me shelter!" "Shelter? From what?" my hand closing on a pistol butt.

"Indians! Be merciful, for God's sake. They are there in the valley, they are after me. I just escaped them—they were going to burn me at the stake!"

I glanced aside at Tim; his rifle was flung forward. Then I looked quickly back at the man, who had already dropped from his horse, and seemed scarcely able to stand. Was this true, had he ridden here unknowing whom he would meet, with no other thought but to save his life? Heaven knows he looked the part—his swarthy face dirtied, with a stain of blood on one cheek, his shirt ripped into rags, bare-headed, and with a look of terror in his eyes not to be mistaken. Villain and savage as I knew him to be, I still felt a strange wave of pity sweep me—pity and tenderness, mingled with hatred and distrust.

"Kirby," I said, and strode in between him and Tim's leveled weapon. "There is no friendship between us—now, or at any time. I believe you to be a miserable, snarling dog; but I would save even a cur from Indian torture. Did you know we were here?" "No, so help me God. I saw the cabin, and hoped to find help."

"The savages are following you?" "Yes—yes; see! Look down there—there are half a hundred of the devils, and—Black Hawk."

"By the holy smoke, Cap, he's right—there they are!" sung out Kennedy, pointing excitedly. "The cuss ain't a lyin'. What'll we do?"

I saw them also by this time, my mind in a whirl of indecision. What should we do? What ought we to do? We should have to fight to the death—there was no doubt of that. An attempt to get away was manifestly impossible. But what about this renegade, this infernal scoundrel, this hell-hound who had been trailing us to kill and destroy? Should we turn him back now to his deserved fate, or should we offer him the same chance for life we had? He might fight; he might add one rifle to our defense; he might help us to hold out until rescuers came. And then—then—after that—we could settle our score. Tim's voice broke the silence.

"I reckon we ain't got much time," he said grimly. "It's one thing, 'er the other. I'm fer givin' the d— beggar a chance. I can't turn no white man over ter Injuns—not me. Kirby's got a gun, an' I reckon we're goin' fer ter need 'em all afore this blame fracas is over with."

"And I agree with you, Mr. Kennedy," said Eloise, clearly, speaking from the open door. "Lieutenant Knox, no one here has more to forgive than I. We must give the man refuge—it would be inhuman not to."

"Go in!" I said, grimly, to Kirby, looking him squarely in the eyes. "And then play the man, if you care to live."

I lingered there, upon the outside for a moment, but for a moment only. The advancing cloud of savages were already coming up the slope, gradually spreading out into the form of a fan. The majority were mounted, although several struggled forward on foot. Near their center appeared the ominous gleam of a red blanket, waved back and forth as though in signal, but the distance was too great for my eyes to distinguish the one manipulating it. We were trapped, with our backs to the wall.

There were but few preparations to be made, and I gave small attention to Kirby until these had been hastily completed. The door and window were barred, the powder and slugs brought up from below, the rifles loaded and primed, the few loopholes between the logs opened, and a pail of water placed within easy reach. This was all that could be done.

Kennedy made use of the fellow, ordering him about almost brutally, and Kirby obeyed the commands without an answering protest. To all appearances he was as eager as we in the preparations for defense. But he could not command him; to even address the fellow would have been torture, for even then I was without faith, without confidence. The very sneaking, cowardly way in which he acted did not appeal to me as natural. I could not deny his story—those approaching Indians alone were proof that he fled from a real danger; and yet—and yet, to my mind he could not represent anything but treachery. I possessed but one desire—to kick the cringing cur.

I stood at a loophole watching the approaching savages. They had halted just below the big tree, and four or five half hidden by the huge trunk, were in consultation, well beyond rifle shot. Assured by their attitude that the attack would not be made immediately, I ventured to turn my face slightly, and take final survey of the room behind. Tim had stationed himself at the other side of the door, his eyes glued to a narrow opening, both hands gripped on his gun. Eloise and the colored girl, the one dry-eyed and alert, the other prone on the floor crying, were where I had told them to go, into the darkest corner. The boy I did not see, nor even remember, but Kirby stood on the bench, which enabled him to peer out through the loop-hole in the window shutter. What I noticed, however, was, that instead of keeping watch without, his eyes were furtively wandering about the room, and, when they suddenly encountered mine, were as instantly averted.

"Where was it you met those Indians, Kirby?" I questioned sternly.

"Down the valley."

"Last night?" "This morning; they surprised us in camp."

"In camp! there were others with you, then. Who were they? the party you had trailing us?"

"Yes," a decidedly sullen tone creeping into his voice. "Five of them; one was a Winnebago."

"And Rafe was along, I presume. What became of the others?"

He shook his head, but with no show of feeling.

"That's more than I know. Things were hot enough for me without bothering about the rest. I never saw any of them again, except Rafe. He was killed in the fight. About an hour after that I shot the buck who was guarding me, and got away on his horse."

"What Indians were they?"

THE successful farmer raises bigger crops and cuts down costs by investment in labor-saving machinery.

Good prices for the farmer's crops encourage new investment, more production and greater prosperity.

But the success of agriculture depends on the growth of railroads—the modern beasts of burden that haul the crops to the world's markets.

The railroads—like farms—increase their output and cut down unit costs by the constant investment of new capital.

With fair prices for the work they do, the railroads are able to attract new capital for expanding their facilities.

Rates high enough to yield a fair return will insure railroad growth, and prevent costly traffic congestion which invariably results in poorer service at higher cost.

National wealth can increase only as our railroads grow.

Poor railroad service is dear at any price. No growing country can long pay the price of inadequate transportation facilities.

"Sacs mostly; some boxes, and may be a Winnebago or two."

"Was Black Hawk with them?"

"I don't know—I never saw Black Hawk."

I felt firmly convinced that he was deliberately lying, and yet there was nothing in his story which might not be true. No doubt it was prejudice, personal hatred, and distrust which led me to come to this conclusion. Well, true or not, I meant to see that he fought now.

"All right, but I advise you to keep your eyes outside," I said sternly. "Don't be staring about the cabin any more."

"I was looking for something to eat."

"Is that so? Well, you better stand it for awhile without eating. What is it, Eloise?"

"Please let me hand him some food?"

Many local women are interested in the suffrage movement and are hopeful that the session is called and the amendment ratified. Others declare that they are indifferent to the movement and would not turn over their hand to secure the ratification. Objection to the one-day session has been heard here, especially since the legislature is expected to be called into another special session within sixty days to consider important legislation.
